

Projects

ERRG continues to provide technical assistance to coordinate and participate in all Oceania Regional Response Team (ORRT) meetings throughout Oceania Region 9. The ORRT provides federal, state, and local government agencies with means to participate in the response and preparedness to natural and environmental hazards. The mission of the ORRT is to protect public health and safety and the environment. The four major responsibilities of the ORRT are: 1) response; 2) planning; 3) training; and 4) coordination.

Response - ERRG has provided responders to assist in response activities and participate in Emergency Support Functions under FEMA; and may be called upon to provide technical advice, equipment, or manpower to assist with a response.

Planning - ERRG drafted and distributed the Oceania Regional Contingency Plan (ORCP) that was promulgated April 2010.

The ORCP is designed to ensure that the roles of federal and state agencies during an actual incident are clear. Following an incident/response, ORRT identifies problems with the Region's response and works to develop lessons learned and an improvement plan.

Training - ERRG supports and provides exercises of ORCP to test the abilities of federal, state and local agencies to coordinate their emergency response activities. ERRG has also completed numerous ICS courses in conjunction with ORRT meetings with the local response community.

Coordination - ERRG helps the ORRT to identify available resources from each agency within their regions. This coordination assures that resources are used as wisely as possible, and no Region is lacking what it needs to protect human health and the environment.

ERRG provides presentations and coordinates meetings with video teleconferencing to link Hawaii, San Francisco, Guam, American Samoa, and the Commonwealth of the Northern Mariana Islands (CNMI). ERRG prepares meeting minutes, reports and documents for the NRT website and the annual stakeholders report.
